

Abstract of the Disclosure

A part of a high-resolution image captured by a camera is extracted as a partial image, a low-resolution image is generated using the extracted 5 partial image, and a mobile object is detected using a low-resolution image. Then, using a high-resolution image, a recognition process for the detected mobile object is performed.